

Research Round-Up Summer 2014: A selection of recent aphasiology publications with links to journal abstracts.

Groenewold et al.: The effects of direct and indirect speech on discourse comprehension in Dutch listeners with and without aphasia

<http://www.tandfonline.com/doi/full/10.1080/02687038.2014.902916#.U7wDXPIdWLE>

Le Dorze et al.: A description of the personal and environmental determinants of participation several years post-stroke according to the views of people who have aphasia

<http://www.tandfonline.com/doi/full/10.1080/02687038.2013.869305#.U7wE3PIdWLE>

Thiel et al.: A comparison of errorless and errorful therapies for dysgraphia after stroke

http://www.tandfonline.com/doi/full/10.1080/09602011.2013.875925#.U75rK_IdWLE

Reilly et al.: Lesion symptom mapping of manipulable object naming in nonfluent aphasia: Can a brain be both embodied and disembodied?

<http://www.tandfonline.com/doi/full/10.1080/02643294.2014.914022#.U75urfldWLE>

Fieder et al.: From “some butter” to “a butter”: An investigation of mass and count representation and processing

<http://www.tandfonline.com/doi/full/10.1080/02643294.2014.903914#.U75vPPIdWLE>